"MADE IN NORTH CAROLINA."

Stonewall Jackson's Widow Dead.

Mrs. Mary Ann Jackson, widow of Gen. Stonewall Jackson, of the Confederacy, died in Charlotte yesterday. Mayor Bland issued a proclamation closing the city hall, requested all business be suspended at 4:30, the funeral hour. The schools will give holiday and court adjourned, all out of respect to this noble woman of the southland and of the Confederacy.

Organ Recital Tomorrow Night.

There will be an organ recital at Wesley Memorial M. E. church Friday at 7:45 p. m., by Prof. Mortimer Browning, assisted by his wife, Madam Pauline Abbott Browning. They are from the Peabody Conservatory and come here with the highest credentials and a magnificent musical program will be given. No charge for admission but a collection will be taken for the organ fund.

The Fox Pictures.

The Rose Opera Co. has secured the celebrated Fox Pictures, shown on Broadway, New York, and for the time being one of these pictures will be shown each Friday and after the Master Key is concluded the Fox pictures will also be shown on Saturday, making two each week. For tomorrow the subject of the Fox picture will be the "Silver Lining."

Bitten by a Rabid Dog.

Alfred Capel, a young white man, son of C. C. Capel, of upper Richmond, went to Raleigh Saturday morning, where he will take the Pasteur treatment, he having been bitten by a rabid dog Thursday afternoon.

In the Recorder's Court.

An hour or two at the Recorder's court furnishes a variety of crimes and offenses for the on-looker to ponder over, from the ridiculous to the most pathetic scenes, from the cess-pool of filth and degradation to the touching incidents of everyday life, all aired before the majesty of the law.

A reporter of The Review spent a short while in court Wednesday. The first case was that of assault with a gun on an unfaithful wife by her husband, Jim Smith, whose rendition of the scenes leading up to the deed was told in a simple yet dramatic way at times by the negro defendant, whose manifest agony touched a tender spot in the hearts of the crowd. There was no show at all of the negro and he told his tale as only an ignorant descendant of Ham could talk, but it was the very kind that impressed the merciful judge who has a pretty good knowledge of human nature, because the unlettered negro proved by all a good character. He was given a six months' sentence in the workhouse and doubtless will not be made to serve the sentence out.

Another case of affray brought forth much spicy testimony. Said the prosecuting attorney: "You say the lick on your face (the negro was black) did not produce any black mark from the wound." The audience giggled; who wouldn't?

Judge Peacock is a conscientious judge with a big heart and he handles the cases before him in a business-like way. Having a keen insight into human nature his decisions most invariably fit the crime. Such a man lends dignity to the law.

An expression by one of the lawyers that it was evident that the negro girl's sweetheart didn't intend to harm her because he had the chance if he so desired brought the expression from the judge that he was of the same opinion and let the defendant off with the costs.

The lectures by Judge Peacock to the law-breakers are able and just and cannot fail to leave an impression for good and after all that's what the law is for, to make better citizens, not to punish them because it is law nor to derive pleasure from it, but by the punishment to make the offender a better man or woman.

Asheboro to Debate Jamestown
The debating team of the graded school literary society will debate Jamestown at Asheboro while another team from that school will go to Siler City. The question to be debated is the "Ship Subsidy." Rush Lassiter and Colon Richardson will defend the question at home while June Frazier and Clifton Whitaker will wage the battle against Siler City. Asheboro, Jamestown and Siler City constitute the triangular contest.

Death of Mrs. Dawkins.
Mrs. J. R. Dawkins died at her home in West Ashboro, on last Sunday evening, aged 35. She was a woman of the highest type of character and was stricken in the prime of life by the great white plague, and her death falls heavily upon many friends and relatives.

The funeral and burial were conducted Monday at the old family burying ground about 15 miles south of Ashboro, Rev. J. E. Thompson, officiating.

Surviving are two children and husband.

SCHOOL CLOSINGS, ETC.

Davis Mountain school will close Wednesday, March 31st, with an old time exhibition. The exercises will start at 10:30 a. m. with address of welcome by the schools followed by an address by Rev. J. E. Thompson. Dinner will be served on the ground. The afternoon will be devoted to dialogues, music, etc., and the exercises will close at night with an old time spelling bee.

Oak Ridge school, near Seagroves will close on March 27th with appropriate exercises.

The schools at Pattersons Grove and Fair Grove will close the latter part of the week. Pattersons Grove closes Friday and Fair Grove on Saturday. Mr. A. H. York will be on hand with a usual line of refreshments at each of the places.

On Saturday March 27th, at 3 o'clock p. m. Randleman Councilman No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M., together with Royal Council No. 72, Daughters of Liberty will present a flag and Bible to White Hall School. An interesting program will be arranged for the occasion.

North Carolina First Again.

It is not generally known but it is a fact nevertheless that North Carolina merchants are responsible for the National Pure Food law, the measure having been first brought up by the North Carolina association and given recognition by the state legislature and from there carried before Congress by North Carolinians. So you see this state continues to sit at the head of the table in matters of moment.

Negro Elucidates.

An old negro man got off a fine joke about the High Point charter the other day and it's too good to keep. Said the old negro: "It took all you white folks in North Carolina to disfranchise us niggers, but Mr. Robert Brockett disfranchised all the white people in High Point by himself."

The I. I. and I. Co.

A new enterprise for High Point is the Independent Insurance and Investment Co., with E. O. Mendenhall, president and W. R. Morrow, secretary and treasurer. The company has been incorporated and will have offices in the Bank of Commerce building. General insurance, real estate investments, handling bonds and stocks is the line in hand. Two hustlers in charge and here is wishing them the greatest of success.

Brings Good Price.

733,340 square feet of the J. F. Bain land was sold to Bascom Hoskins for $10,000, a good price, showing what High Point dirt is worth, considering location.

OPEN UP NEW STREET

Workmen were placed at work this morning to open the new street leading from the western part of the city to the new development known as Westview. This property adjoins Roland park and goes back beyond Carrick Moore.

J. T. May, state counsellor of the Daughters of Liberty, whose home office is located at Durham, was in the city. He addressed the local lodge on "The Progress of the Order in the South." Other visitors were here from Greensboro and Lexington.

Mr. Tucker, of the Southern railway, who was stricken with an attack of appendicitis, is able to be out again. He may submit to an operation later.

Central Fall News.

There will be a box party here Saturday night, April 3rd.

Boys of Central Falls have organized a base ball team and will soon be ready to meet any other club in the county.

MRS. W. M. BROWN DEAD

The funeral of Mrs. W. M. Brown, who died Monday night, was held at Mount Zion church near Trinity Wednesday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, the service being conducted by her pastor, Rev. Ed. Suits. Mrs. Brown was a victim of pneumonia, and she had been ill only a short while.

FIRE AT ASHBORO.

Ashboro, March 23.—Fire broke out this morning about 6 o'clock in the home of Thaddeus Auman, in West Ashboro, and his home and contents, together with the home and about half the contents of Sam Barnes were destroyed. Both houses were new, only recently constructed, and the loss falls heavily on these two men, who work in one of the shops here. Mr. Auman had $300 insurance, but Mr. Barnes had none.

The Honor Roll--Get On It

The Review acknowledges receipt of following subscriptions paid since last issue:

We return many thanks for the favor—the money is needed. Whose names will appear on the honor roll next week?

Ex-Judge Roan Who Tried Frank Is Dead.

New York, March 23.—Former Judge L. S. Roan, of Atlanta, who tried and sentenced Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan, died here today, in the Poly-clinic hospital where he had been a patient since February 26.

Merchants, Watch the Itinerants.

High Point merchants will do well to watch every itinerant salesman or peddler that comes to town and ascertain if he has paid the county and city license. There is a law to protect the people from fakes and it should be applied. It's not right to let them fake the people when the local merchants pay taxes and help build the town and at the same time remain here to stand behind each and every sale while the itinerant skips out and leaves his victims to repent at leisure. Those who won't protect themselves should have a guardian and the merchant can best act in that capacity. There have been too many cases of "duped people" here to particularize; suffice it to say—don't let it happen again.

Residence and Store Burns.

Fire early yesterday morning destroyed the store and home of J. C. Kivett in the western part of the city. Origin unknown, but there is a rumor that the store was robbed before the fire started and it may be this was done to cover up the deed. Loss $4,000 with $2,000 insurance.

Banker After Absent Son.

Chas. H. Patton, Sr., of Philadelphia, was here recently looking for his son, Chas. H. Jr., who left home 13 years ago. The old gentleman is reputed to be worth one million dollars and is a well-known banker of the Quaker City. He heard his boy was in this town but failed to find him.

Asheville to Have Wrapped Bread.

BAKERS AND GROCERS WILLING IF PEOPLE WANT IT.

Since the people don't always appreciate the danger they run from various kinds of diseases, especially typhoid fever on account of unwrapped bread, Asheville's watchful health officer, Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, at this point is guarding his flock. It was in 1910 that Asheville passed an ordinance requiring that bread be wrapped before being exposed for sale or for delivery over the city. But since that time, it appears this ordinance has slept, waking only for short intervals. "Now, says the health officer, 'this ordinance must be enforced.'"

The trouble seems to have been not so much with the bakers and grocers but with the people themselves. They didn't demand wrapped bread. Most of the bakers said they wanted to give the people what the people wanted, but they were not interested in clean bread enough to demand it. As to the increased expense of wrapping, there is no argument since wrapping it on the wholesale plan or at the bakeries must be cheaper than on the retail plan, or at the shops and groceries. The dear people as a rule already pay for its being wrapped at one place or the other, so it is largely a question of getting it wrapped before it gets dirty instead of afterward.

These bakers, be it said to their credit, did not object to bread wrapping on the same score as did the bakers of Dayton, Ohio. The Dayton bakers based their objection on the ground that if the bread was wrapped at the bakery by the time it reached the consumer the paper was so dirty that it ruined the sale of the bread.

There can be no question about unwrapped bread being dirty. Bacteria examinations of unwrapped bread as delivered to the consumer invariably show large quantities of bacteria and frequently filthy, sewerage bacteria, probably from the hands or coat or shirt sleeves of delivering boys, to say nothing of street dust, questionable baskets, or sales counter. Then two there is the occasional fall from the wagon, sidewalk only to be picked up by the same hands that carry and drive the horse.

The danger from all this would not be so great were it not the fact that as a rule bread is eaten without being washed or cooked, hence the rich field for typhoid by the contact method.

Asheville is to be congratulated so is every other town that believes in eating clean food. From present indications it won't be long before many other towns fall in line.—N. C. State Board of Health.

Thomasville Merchant in Bankruptcy Court

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States district in Greensboro against L. R. Clark a merchant of Thomasville. The respondent is cited to appear before James E. Boyd on April 1 and show cause why he should not be adjudged a bankrupt.

It is alleged in the petition that the respondent owes debts in excess of $3,700 that he cannot pay; and that he committed an act of bankruptcy within the past four months in transferring some of his property to certain creditors for the purpose of giving preference to these creditors.

Big Loss by Fire at Gould's Lodge.

Three buildings belonging to the famous George Gould lodge, which is situated near Jamestown, about six miles from High Point, burned Sunday shortly after noon. The buildings included a stable, granary and another outbuilding. Fifteen horses and a large amount of grain were lost. The loss is estimated at about $20,000. These buildings were separated by a considerable distance from the lodge, which was not damaged by the flames.

It is stated that the fire started while the keeper was at dinner, and when he returned it was too late to check the flames or save the animals or other property. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The Gould lodge is one of the famous hunting lodges maintained in North Carolina by eastern millionaires. It is a favorite resort for its owner, who was here for his last hunting trip of the season about three weeks ago. It is supposed that the destroyed buildings will be replaced speedily.
